"Takeovers Act," said a spokeswoman at Australia's Treasury department. "If the changes were significant they would need to be consistent with Australia's national interest test under that act."

'A change in the corporate structure and listing arrangement would need to be carefully considered'

disappointed BHP rejected its proposal in response as "dismissive" and indicated it could not provide support. "That our earlier meetings with management were constructive," said Elliott. "BHP should embrace a broadening of the discussion to include all shareholders... we, as no doubt other shareholders of BHP, look forward to management providing a more thorough and reasoned assessment of the plan."
